

The Philatelic 'Facsimile' Book Collection of the Canadian Postal Archives

by Cimon Morin

The National Archives of Canada created the Canadian Postal Archives (CPA) on April 1, 1988, to acquire and preserve Canada's philatelic heritage. While emphasis is placed on acquisitions of philatelic and archival records of national significance, the CPA also endeavours to enhance its research tools by the addition of facsimile reproductions of important philatelic collections formed over the years by prominent philatelists and postal historians.

The former National Postal Museum initiated this program, not only to develop additional research tools that would enhance reference materials on various specialized Canadian and BNA stamp and cover collections, but also to preserve the visual historical aspect of the development of the hobby in Canada. Among the objectives of this program was the process of approaching philatelists on an individual basis in order to obtain photocopies of their collections which, in many instances, would have been awarded a certain level of recognition at national or international philatelic events. In some instances, philatelists actually have brought their philatelic collections to the Museum /Archives premises where copying then was undertaken. This was particularly true with the photocopying of the early collections of certain members of the Museum Advisory Committee who met on a regular basis in Ottawa. This program subsequently was carried on through the years, and, with the transfer of the philatelic, archival and Library collections to the National Archives of Canada in 1988, it continued at an even greater rate. The collection of facsimile reference material now constitutes a total of 100 titles thanks to the cooperation of philatelists throughout Canada and elsewhere in the world, not to mention such former members of the National Postal Museum/Canadian Postal Archives as Jim Kraemer, C. Ron McGuire, Jim Brennan, and Ken Johnson who ensured the continuation of the program. In most instances, three photocopies are made with an appropriate title page which then would be commercially bound. Subsequently, a complimentary bound copy would be presented to the owners.

Similar types of publications also have been initiated by professional philatelists¹ and these have been published and made available through dealers and societies. These "commercial" titles have not been included in this list and may form the subject of another interesting listing.

The facsimile philatelic book collection constitutes a true record of some of the great Canadian collections of the past and the present. In most instances, these facsimiles represent philatelic collections that were shown at national and international exhibitions. The collection also demonstrates the collectors' ability to develop a specialized collection while preserving information that might otherwise have been lost. The photocopies through the years further constitute specialized research studies which show the provenance and custody of key philatelic pieces. They are a testament to the dedication and interest of their creators.

It also should be mentioned that the collection draws to the attention of those philatelists which have been awarded recognition for their exhibits the opportunity of seeing a photocopy of their collection and/or exhibit deposited with the Canadian Postal Archives. The criteria required to do this includes the following: a definite "Canadiana" relevancy, such as collections formed by residents of Canada or nonresidents about Canada or BNA; significant collections formed by Canadians on other non-Canadian philatelic subject matter, which covers a multitude of choices. Philatelists interested in this program are most welcome to contact me at the Canadian Postal Archives, National Archives of Canada, 395 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0N3.

Please note that all of the books listed here are available to researchers using the National Archives of Canada research facilities in Ottawa. The titles identified with an asterisk (*) identify those titles also available on interlibrary loan. Request for interlibrary loans, through appropriate local public libraries, should be sent to The National Archives of Canada, LDSC, 395 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0N3 [Fax:613-943-8491].
