The 3-Cent Small Queen of 1870

W CHARLES J.G. VERGE

The 3-cent (Canada Scott 37) was the first value issued in the long running Canadian series called the Small Queens (1870-97). This name was given to the series to distinguish it from the Large Queens that had been issued earlier in 1868.

These series were also known as the Large and Small Heads, descriptive terms still used by some collectors mainly in Great Britain and the United States (Figure 1).

Figure 1: 3-cent Large Queen and 3-cent Small Queen showing the size difference that allowed for 200 Small Queens to be printed in the same space as 100 Large Queens.

The difference in size is due mainly to the fact that the Canadian Post Office was looking for a more efficient use of the printing plate and by extension savings in its stampprinting budget. To this end they were accommodated by the printers, the British American Bank Note Co. (BABN) who started preparing Small Queen dies as early as the fall of 1868.

During its 27 years of production more than 1-1/2 billion 3-cent stamps were printed. The Canadian Post Office placed its first order with the BABN for 1-cent and 3-cent Small Queens on Dec. 17, 1869, and the earliest known use of the 3-cent is on a piece dated Jan. 12, 1870, at Port Hope, Ontario.

The 3-cent stamps were all perforated 12 except for a very few sheets that were perforated 12-1/2 (Canada Scott 37d). John Keenlyside, in his extensive study of the 3-cent Small Queen perf 12-1/2, reports that about 150 of these stamps exist of which five are unused.

The largest multiple is used pairs of which six are recorded. There is one vertical pair, one on piece (Figure 2) and one on a cover to Cuba. There are at least two distinct shades of the perf 12-1/2 stamp. The mixing of inks at the time was not the most precise art even if recipes were kept to ensure the proper portions of each color was put into the mix. The current catalogued shades are those referred to as Indian red and copper red.

One has to look at Canada's First Bill Stamp issue of 1864 to explain the reason for this rare variety of the Small Queens (Figure 3). On June 30, 1864, the Province of Canada passed "An Act to Impose Duties on Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchanges." This empowered the government to collect taxes on fiscal instruments such as checks, promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange and other documents of the same nature.

These Bill Stamps and the 3-cent Small Queens were the only Canadian stamps in the mid-19th century that were perforated 12-1/2. Keenlyside writes that the Bill stamps perforator was put into service due to a breakdown of the regular perf 12 machine. Apparently this was done in order to meet the delivery deadline for the first order.

How many sheets were perforated 12-1/2 is unknown. The strong dominance of two correspondences bearing the 3-cent Small Queen perf 12-1/2 makes one think there were more of these stamps issued than there really was. In the 1930s, Dr. Lewis Reford, a prominent Canadian collector, went through 19,000 unsorted copies of the 3-cent Small Queens from the early printings. He found 17 copies of the perf 12-1/2 variety. This would indicate that less than one-tenth of 1 percent of the total printing was issued or some 50,000 stamps (250 sheets) of the 59 million early 3-cent printed.

The 12-1/2 perf measurement on this stamp is not an exact 12-1/2. There is a range of variances. In Table 1, based on Keenlyside's research, I give six examples of these varieties to show the difference in measurements. No great store should be put into these small variations. At the time, the pins of perforating machines were not tooled to the fine tolerances we expect of modern equipment.

Surviving usages clearly indicate that the 3-cent Small Queen perf 12-1/2 sheets were sent to the Maritimes. Keenlyside believes the stamps were sent to the St. John, New Brunswick, Post Office and were sold there even if a large number of the Hoyt correspondence usages originate in Nova Scotia. The few late usages of the stamp in St. Stephen, New Brunswick, may also indicate that a few sheets were sent there for sale from the main post office in St. John.

Before writing about the Hoyt and Pickard correspondence, I should point out that only one confirmed usage is known outside the Maritimes. An illustrated cover from the Robert Wilkes wholesale jewelry company is recorded dated March 31, 1870 (Figure 4). It is possible that a traveling salesman may have picked up some of the stamps in the Maritimes and had some left over when he returned to Toronto.

Another two loose stamps canceled by Ottawa cork obliterators have been recorded. Perhaps Dr. Alfred A. Stockton, a lawyer and author of the Pickard letters, carried these stamps with him on his frequent political trips to Ottawa to frank one or more of his regular letters to his Haligonian fiancée, Amelia Pickard.

Miss Pickard, who lived in Halifax, received about two letters per week from her fiancé, Dr. Stockton, between 1867 and 1871. These were consecutively numbered and several of the 1870 letters bear 3-cent Small Queens perf 12-1/2 (Figure 5). The two were married Sept. 5, 1871, and resided in St. John, New Brunswick, where they raised 10 children. Dr. Stockton's law offices were in the Bank of New Brunswick building, which was situated on William Street right beside the St. John post office.

Virtually all the recorded usages in Nova Scotia involve mail to or from Jesse Hoyt (Figure 6) of Pictou, Nova Scotia. Hoyt, a ninth generation North American, was a mining and telegraphy pioneer who made important contributions to the completion of the transatlantic cable between Newfoundland and Ireland. He had commercial ship-ping interests in St. John, New Brunswick.

The March 1, 1870, letter to his brother-in-law, Captain Henry Brown, in Cuba, posted at St. John, suggests that he may have purchased a supply of the 3-cent Small Queens perf 12-1/2 in St. John in early 1870 (Figure 7).

Keenlyside is convinced that most of the Hoyt correspondence consists of business reply mail prepared and stamped by Hoyt with invoices to customers of Acadia Coal Mines. In 1987, the Nova Scotia Archives, on behalf of Keenlyside, conducted handwriting analyses that proved that Hoyt had addressed all the letters bearing his name and address.

The six registered letters recorded are all posted from Truro, Nova Scotia, and addressed to Hoyt but not by him. They were likely ballots being returned by company directors. Since they are all franked the same way (2-cent Large Queen and 3-cent Small Queen perf 12-1/2) the stamps were

To complete his decade-long study of this stamp, Keenlyside accumulated a large quantity of this rare Small Queen variety. His collection included 47 stamps, all six recorded pairs (including one on piece and one on cover) and 30 covers (including three registered and the cover with the pair mentioned
